In a scathing response to the recent ban imposed by the Zimbabwe Republic Police on the Citizens Coalition for Change (CCC) launching its campaign manifesto, CCC Leader, Advocate Nelson Chamisa, has issued a warning to oppressors who disregard basic rights and freedoms for both citizens and opposition members.

President Chamisa took to Twitter to express his concerns, asserting that those responsible for such actions will one day regret their oppressive tactics.

The ban on the CCC's campaign manifesto launch, which scheduled to take place on Sunday in Bindura, emerged from allegations made by the police that the chosen venue lacked essential ablution facilities and proper road access.

This move by the police came amidst a series of obstacles placed in the path of the CCC's campaign efforts, exhibiting what many believe to be a deliberate attempt to frustrate the biggest opposition party in Zimbabwe.

Initially, the CCC had booked Chipadze stadium in Bindura for the event.

However, the Bindura town clerk, allegedly at the insistence of Zanu PF, claimed that the stadium was undergoing renovations, rendering it unsuitable for the launch.

It was later discovered that these claims were baseless and untrue.

Left with no option, the CCC had to hastily find an alternative venue, settling for a private location.

Yet, this choice was soon discredited on the grounds that it lacked ablution facilities and proper roads, forcing the CCC to reassess their plans.

President Chamisa Warns Against Oppressors And Dictators

Undeterred by the repeated roadblocks hindering their campaign efforts, the CCC took immediate action by submitting an urgent appeal against the ban imposed by the police.

However, the magistrate handling the case frustratingly delayed the hearing, scheduling it two days after the proposed launch date, pushing the CCC into a tight corner.

A glimmer of hope emerged when the High Court ruled that the magistrate had made an error in failing to attend to the urgent matter at hand.

The High Court promptly instructed the Bindura magistrates' court to hear the CCC's appeal immediately, recognizing the urgency of the situation.

However, the Bindura magistrates' court dismissed the appeal against the CCC party, on allegations that they failed to provide the police with the required 5-day notification prior to the event which is totally in contrast with the law.

The law explicitly demands a 3-day notification period. Interestingly, the ruling was pronounced after 4 pm, casting doubt on the urgency of the case.

Amidst these series of events, President Chamisa took to social media to voice his frustrations, issuing a warning to the oppressors responsible for these oppressive tactics.

President Chamisa's tweet read, "Without allowing basic rights and freedoms for the citizens and opposition, the incumbent is doomed! All oppressors, kindly take this advice. You will thank me later!!"

These strong words reveal the deep-rooted frustration and determination of the CCC leader in challenging the oppressors and fighting for the rights and freedoms of the citizens.

Moreover, the CCC has faced numerous other obstacles during the campaign period, with over 92 rallies and meetings being either banned or disrupted by both Zanu PF members and the police.

These incidents further highlight the ongoing struggle faced by the biggest opposition party (CCC) in its pursuit of a better Zimbabwe that benefits everyone.

As the CCC continues to navigate these adversities, the actions of the oppressors have only fueled the party's resolve, giving rise to a united and defiant front.

President Chamisa Pays Tribute To Dabengwa Family, Extols Their Contributions To Liberation Of Zimbabwe

■ Citizens Coalition for Change leader Nelson Chamisa delivered a heartfelt speech during the funeral service of Mama Zodwa Dabengwa, who was laid to rest on Saturday in her rural homestead in Ntabazinduna.

By Tongai Mwenje

President Chamisa, one of the speakers at the Amphitheater in Bulawayo, spoke highly of the Dabengwa family, specifically highlighting the late liberation war hero Dumiso Dabengwa's significant role in the struggle for independence.

In his speech, President Chamisa expressed his deep admiration for Dumiso Dabengwa, referring to him as his mentor and father figure.

He emphasized the strong bond he shared with the late liberation war hero, revealing that they had worked closely together.

President Chamisa acknowledged that his connection with Dumiso Dabengwa was rooted in their shared vision of building a great Zimbabwe.

"I'm here as a family, this was my mother and baba Dabengwa was my father. You can't be a leader if you don't have tutors and mentors. (The late) Dr Dabengwa and I walked and worked very well. And the reason why we connected is because he wanted to see a great Great Zimbabwe and we represent that vision," he said.

Furthermore, President Chamisa paid tribute to Mama Zodwa Dabengwa, acknowledging her as a mother figure in his life.

He revealed that she would regularly pray for his wellbeing, making him feel safe and supported.

President Chamisa fondly remembered her words, "Chamisa my son, I am praying for you to be safe," which demonstrated the care and concern she had for his welfare.

The loss of Mama Zodwa weighed heavily on President Chamisa, as he described her as a mother who constantly prayed for him.

The CCC leader stressed the importance of unity and prayer in building a nation, suggesting that Mama Zodwa's prayers were instrumental in fostering a sense of togetherness among Zimbabweans.

He said that the country was losing pillars of strength in its journey towards progress.

Both Dumiso and Zodwa Dabengwa were likened to pillars of the nation, individuals who understood the significance of regional development, devolved authority, and empowering the people.

"Why are we crying? We are crying because we are losing the pillars of our nation. Baba Dabengwa was a pillar of this nation so was mama Dabengwa. They understood that to build a nation we must build regions, to build a nation we must devolve authority, to build a nation we must empower the people."

Chamisa resonated with Dumiso Dabengwa's vision of a developed Bulawayo and Zimbabwe as a whole.

He expressed the belief that resources should be shared equitably among all citizens, highlighting Dumiso Dabengwa's desire for progress and growth.

According to President Chamisa, the Dabengwa family represents an enduring legacy, one that embodies the principles and aspirations crucial for building a prosperous nation.

"(The late) Baba Dabengwa wanted Bulawayo and Zimbabwe as a whole to develop. The Dabengwa family represents a legacy."

Dedicating his time to attend the funeral service and burial of Mama Zodwa Dabengwa, President Chamisa temporarily set aside his ongoing nationwide rural campaigns to pay his last respects to a woman whom he considered a mother and beacon of support.

Through his speech, Chamisa revealed a deep, personal connection to both Dumiso and Zodwa Dabengwa, honoring their contributions and commitment to the nation's development.

The funeral service and burial of Mama Zodwa Dabengwa was attended by family, friends, government officials and political figures from different political groups including Zanu PF and CCC as they came together to celebrate her life and legacy.

Gunshots: CCC Outrage As Police Refuse To Take Action Against Energy Mutodi

By Citizens Daily Bulletin Correspondent

The Citizens Coalition for Change (CCC) members have expressed their outrage after a senior Bikita Police Officer, Taurai J. Mambure, reportedly refused to take action against Energy Mutodi, an aspiring member of Parliament for the Zanu PF party.

Mutodi stands accused of firing two gunshots at a crowd gathered at Baradzanwa business center in an attempt to intimidate them.

The incident occurred just moments before a scheduled address by CCC leader Nelson Chamisa on Thursday.

According to witnesses, Mambure advised CCC Bikita cluster members not to report the case, claiming that it had lapsed.

However, this decision has left the CCC members stunned and furious, as they believe it places political expedience above the pursuit of justice.

Simon Ziki, a member of the CCC, expressed his disbelief at Mambure's refusal to take action, stating: "If this case is not reported, it means the police have given a green light for anyone to commit a crime without facing justice."

Ziki emphasised the urgency of taking the matter to the next level to ensure that Mutodi is held accountable for his alleged actions.

Meanwhile, reports indicate that Mutodi had orchestrated an effort to disrupt the cluster rally at Baradzanwa business center.

Thousands of CCC members had gathered to listen to President Chamisa's address when Mutodi reportedly fired two gunshots.

However, the crowd stood firm in the face of his intimidation, confronting Mutodi and his team before they swiftly retreated from the scene.

In response to the lack of action from Mambure, the CCC is determined to escalate the situation to ensure that Mutodi does not evade accountability for his alleged criminal behavior.

The community remains resolute in their demand for justice, refusing to let this incident fade away without repercussions.

Mambure's actions have sparked concerns among the community members, who question the impartiality and integrity of the local police force.

As the situation continues to unfold, all eyes are on the authorities to see if justice will prevail or if political protection will override the pursuit of truth.

The CCC, along with the residents of Bikita, are unwavering in their commitment to fight for justice in Zimbabwe. They firmly believe that no individual should be exempt from the consequences of their actions, regardless of their political affiliation or status.

Zim Election Woes, Mnangagwa's Broken Promises And Repressive Tactics

By Mtape Mamuse

Once again, Zimbabwe finds itself in the midst of election season, and the promises made by Mr Emmerson Mnangagwa and his administration are proving to be nothing more than empty words.

Mnangagwa, who assumed power after President Robert Mugabe's removal, claimed to restore the rule of law, democratic principles, and human rights as guaranteed by the constitution.

However, the events following the 2018 elections exposed his true nature.

In a shocking display of power, Mnangagwa unleashed the army in Harare's CBD, resulting in the callous killing of unarmed citizens who were peacefully protesting.

This marked an unprecedented act of brutality in post-independence Zimbabwe.

Those who believed in Mnangagwa's promise of change have now been proved wrong.

THE SECOND REPUBLIC

Under Mnangagwa's administration, known as the "Second Republic," the focus has shifted towards suppressing the opposition, particularly Nelson Chamisa and the Citizen Coalition for Change (CCC).

Chamisa has refused to acknowledge Mnangagwa's victory since the previous national elections, making him a target for the ruling party.

THE ZANU-PF WAY

The closure of political space has become a top priority for Mnangagwa and his party, ZANU-PF.

Dissenting voices, including key allies like Job Sikhala and Jacob Ngarivhume, have been imprisoned on baseless charges, denying them justice and the right to express their views freely.

MILITARISATION OF STATE INSTITUTIONS

Furthermore, the militarization of state institutions has allowed ZANU PF to solidify its control.

The separation of powers between the judiciary, executive, and parliament, crucial for a functioning democracy, has been eroded.

The executive, usurping power, now dictates the actions of the other branches, turning them into mere rubber-stamps.

The repressive laws that governed during Mugabe's era, such as POSA, have been replaced by MOPA, enabling the police to continue restricting the political activities of opposition parties.

The CCC has reported numerous instances where rallies were banned or disrupted, hindering the democratic process. Even after the proclamation of the election date, political activities of opposition parties remain tightly controlled, as seen in the recent prohibition order in Bindura to stop a campaign launch rally.

It is evident that Mnangagwa's promises of free and fair elections are empty rhetoric. Denying the opposition the ability to campaign freely contradicts his supposed commitment to democracy.

The actions of ZEC (Zimbabwe Electoral Commission) and the judiciary, crucial components of a credible election, raise doubts about their independence.

TIRED OF GOING IN CIRCLES

Zimbabwe must break the cycle of disputed elections, as they lead to unrest and political instability. ZEC, in particular, must act as a neutral referee and not a participant.

Taking sides only serves to manipulate the people's vote and has long-term consequences for the nation. The upcoming August elections must result in an uncontested winner, or else ZEC will be held accountable for the ramifications that follow.
