Elections Is A Game Of Optics, Numbers, And Messaging

By Davis Laque

It was a great event at Mkoba Stadium this Sunday. Here are the highlights and my own key observations, as Adv Nelson Chamisa's launched the CCC's #ForEveryone Election Campaign.

As has become common knowledge now, CCC flexed its own political muscle through a colorful, huge and significant spectacle in Gweru last Sunday, as it formally launched its election campaign.

Elections are a game of numbers, messaging and optics.

When mobilising for public gatherings, parties consciously intend to use such optics and messaging to generate interest and momentum in their campaign. In Gweru, Chamisa and CCC understood and dutifully delivered in this regard.

Tragedy befalls when there's messaging confusion, as Zanu-PF is deliberately attempting to do with the "land" issue, Chamisa articulated. The temptation is confusing, as we now live in the digital era of SM. People will easily read and watch for themselves without being lied to.

Tragedy strikes again, where parties begin believing their own mobilization propaganda, as is happening elsewhere. During earlier proceedings where Amos Chibaya did introductions, town by town, reactions suggested that majority of those attending were Gweru and Midlands locals.

In any case, it's public knowledge that CCC lacks the financial muscles to hire hundreds of buses to needlessly turn each local gathering into a national event. It's thus worth acknowledging and quite vindicating that CCC has a method to its operations, which has kept it alive.

Noteworthy that CCC has maintained a shift-away from the "protocols and shefu politics," where all leaders waste time successively jumping on-stage to praise the president.

Focus should be on the main speech of a rally before allowing those attending to carry home key messages.

Some observers have rightfully noted that CCC hasn't launched yet its 2023 election blueprint.

Much as it would suggest that the average voter doesn't really commit time to read manifestos, it remains a political culture that must be cultivated. It's an ideal electoral practice

In fact, much of the hullabaloo we are witnessing around Chamisa's land pledge wouldn't exist if his supporters would counter-reference to a manifesto.

While what Nero said was clear to any person with functional senses, a manifesto is an equally key anti-propaganda safeguard.

But of course, I take notice of the fact that the Opposition doesn't traditionally launch manifestos at a rally. One can use the 2018 launch as a reference. This observation is key in exposing any mischief, suggesting that the rally failed to achieve that supposed function.

Even before launching the #NewGreatZimbabwe blueprint, NC shared nuggets of CCC policy interventions. The speech addressed: Land, salary adjustment, basket currency as a temporary economic stabiliser; employment creation; depoliticizing and professionalising mining activities.

Was interesting to hear Chamisa share thoughts around SK, without necessarily giving him too much political attention. The message dovetailed with what many of us have been saying ie it's a disenfranchising behaviour of cowards to deny voters a chance to elect who they want. While Chamisa stands accused of running a pro-presidency campaign, it would suggest that it's actually not pro-parliament/senate/council either. For him - it's pro-rural communities. He did commit to campaign more vigorously in the countryside, presumably for obvious reasons.

Historically, opp has appeared to find comfort in a defeatist approach of focusing on what's already 'zones of autonomy', ie the urban constituencies. Perhaps the initial intention to launch the campaign in the troublesome Mash Central Province communicates this new approach.

Also noted intention to employ a political response to the "double candidates" theatrics by vigorously campaigning for official candidates in aggrieved areas. Same goes with the clear commitment to deal with the polling station agents. We pray for same attention to mapping.

All the work that has brought CCC this far warrants recognition. Maybe it's poetic justice that the #ForEveryone launch happened in the city of progress. The progress achieved thus far in keeping the democratic agenda alive is clear. May more progress be realised.

State Media ordered To Delete Positive Tweet About CCC Rally, Raises Concerns Over Impartiality

In a bizarre twist of events that raises questions about the impartiality of Zimbabwe's state media, The Chronicle, one of the country's leading news outlets, was instructed to remove a positive tweet about the Citizens Coalition for Change (CCC) rally

By Tongai Mwenje

This shocking directive seems to further demonstrate the lengths to which the state media is willing to go in order to tarnish the reputation of the CCC.

The tweet in question depicted a packed crowd at Mkoba Stadium on Sunday afternoon, where the CCC had organized a campaign launch.

Accompanied by a caption that read, "More scenes from CCC star rally in Gweru, Midlands Province," the tweet showcased the overwhelming support that the political movement had amassed.

What is particularly noteworthy about this incident is that it occurred moments after the state media had initially posted a tweet portraying a small crowd, captured before the full magnitude of attendees had arrived.

It is unclear what prompted this misleading initial tweet, but it certainly raises suspicions about the intentions of the state media.

However, it wasn't long before the positive tweet showcasing the immense support for the CCC was ordered to be deleted, allegedly by higher-ups within the state media organization.

Regrettably for the authorities involved, the swift removal of the tweet did not erase its existence, as digital experts screen-captured and saved the evidence before it vanished from the public eye.

The tweet was initially posted at 14:11 hours, and its subsequent deletion speaks volumes about the ongoing efforts to suppress any positive coverage of the CCC by the state media.

It appears that the state media has established a pattern of reporting and disseminating information that consistently portrays the CCC in a negative light, suggesting a clear bias at play.

One cannot help but note the irony of this situation, as it highlights the CCC's reliance on digital platforms to reach its audience.

When faced with limited access to traditional media outlets, such as national television, where they have rarely been afforded the opportunity to present their progressive ideas free from discriminatory biases, the CCC has turned to digital media as a means of disseminating its messages and connecting with the citizens of Zimbabwe.

As Zimbabwe continues to navigate a complex political landscape ahead of the elections on the 23rd August, instances such as the instructed removal of a positive tweet about the CCC rally raise important questions about the objectivity and integrity of the state media.

The need for balanced and unbiased reporting has never been more crucial in fostering a fair and transparent democratic process for all citizens.

CCC MPs And Councillors Display Solidarity With Sikhala, Demanding His Release From Pre-Trial Detention

During the electrifying campaign launch of the Citizens Coalition for Change (CCC) in Gweru, a powerful display of solidarity took place as the party's MPs and Councillors united behind their colleague, Honorable Job Sikhala, who has been unjustly held in pre-trial detention for an astounding 399 days on false charges

By Tongai Mwenje

The scene was filled with passionate energy as CCC representatives proudly held and waved placards boldly proclaiming "Free Wiwa," a clear expression of their unwavering support for Sikhala.

The party's members were determined to shed light on the injustice their colleague has endured and demanded his immediate release.

Sikhala's ordeal began on June 14, 2022, when he was arrested under fabricated charges of inciting violence.

However, it has become increasingly evident that Sikhala is being targeted due to his legal representation of the Ali family, who mourn the tragic loss of their daughter, Moreblessing Ali, in a brutal murder.

The CCC strongly believes that Sikhala's prolonged detention serves as a means to suppress his political convictions and marginalize his influential voice.

Amidst the charged atmosphere, CCC leader Nelson Chamisa took to the stage to deliver a powerful speech.

Chamisa passionately pledged to prioritize the release of all political prisoners, including Job Sikhala and Jacob Ngarivhume, as a top priority once the CCC assumes power.

The promise ignited a surge of hope and determination within the party's supporters, who responded with resounding applause and cheers.

Never ones to miss an opportunity in the digital age, the CCC promptly posted a tweet to convey their message to a wider audience.

The tweet read, "Our Member of Parliament, Honorable Job Sikhala, has endured an unprecedented 397 days in pre-trial detention for a crime he is innocent of. He is a political prisoner, unjustly persecuted for his political convictions.

"oday, during our campaign launch, President Nelson Chamisa made a promise to release all political prisoners, including Sikhala and Jacob Ngarivhume, promptly upon assuming power. #FreeJob-Sikhala #FreeWiwa."

With every passing day, Sikhala's detention becomes more emblematic of the systemic challenges faced by opposition member and political activists who dare to challenge the regime in Harare and status quo in Zimbabwe.

In voicing their unwavering support for Sikhala, the MPs and Councillors of the CCC have sent a powerful message that they will not rest until justice is served.

As the CCC embarks on their campaign journey ahead of the harmonized elections, their determination to secure the release of their incarcerated comrades stands at the forefront of their mission.

The spotlight on Sikhala's plight serves as a reminder that democratic values and fundamental human rights should never be compromised, and it underscores the urgent need for change within the judicial system.

The CCC's resolute commitment to standing up for their colleague reflects the immense strength and solidarity that exists within their ranks.

It is a reminder that the pursuit of justice is not limited to a single individual but manifests as a collective effort to dismantle the barriers that obstruct freedom and fairness.

The protection of individual rights are at the heart of a thriving democracy.

As the CCC continues to campaign, they carry the hopes and aspirations of not just Job Sikhala, but numerous others who have fallen victim to the oppressive system.

Their battle for justice continues to inspire citizens across the nation, and their unwavering commitment will undoubtedly pave the way for a brighter, more equitable future for everyone.

Local And International Organisations Condemn Zimbabwe's Patriotic Bill, Cite Crackdown On Government Critics

In a concerning turn of events, both local and international organizations have strongly condemned the recent passing into law of the "Patriotic Bill" by the Zimbabwean government

By Tongai Mwenje

The new legislation has been widely criticized for its potential to target and stifle government critics, raising serious concerns about the state of freedom of expression and association in the country.

The United Nations Human Rights office expressed their regret over the signing of the Criminal Law (Codification and Reform) Act into law.

They highlighted the risk of the law being misused to target, criminalize, and weaken civil society, emphasizing that an open and pluralistic civic space is essential for sustainable development.

The UN Human Rights office called for laws and policies that facilitate these objectives.

"#Zimbabwe: We regret that Criminal Law (Codification and Reform) Act has now been signed into law. Risks being misused to target, criminalize and weaken civil society. Open and pluralistic civic space is key for sustainable dev't: law & policy must facilitate these objectives."

Bloomberg Africa reported on the signing of the law by Zimbabwe's president, noting that it prohibits citizens from criticizing the government.

The timing of this law, just a month before the nation's upcoming elections, has raised concerns about the potential impact on freedom of expression and the democratic process.

"Zimbabwe's president signs a law that prohibits citizens from criticizing the government, a month before the southern African nation holds elections."

The European Union (EU) delegation to Zimbabwe expressed disappointment, emphasizing the country's commitment to enhancing respect for freedoms of association, assembly, and expression.

The delegation stated that the passing of the new legislation sends a political signal in the opposite direction, potentially jeopardizing Zimbabwe's efforts to build trust with the international community.

"Zimbabwe, as a sovereign country, has committed in the Arrears Clearance process to enhancing respect for freedoms of association, assembly & expression, as well as building trust with the international community. Today's legislation sends a political signal in the opposite direction."

The UK embassy in Zimbabwe emphasized the importance of freedom of expression and association, which are guaranteed by the country's constitution.

They expressed concern that parts of the new legislation have serious implications for Zimbabweans' ability to exercise these rights without fear, and for the government's international reengagement efforts.

"The rights to freedom of expression and association are guaranteed in Zimbabwe's constitution. Parts of today's new legislation have serious implications for Zimbabweans' ability to exercise those rights without fear, and for Zimbabwe Govt's efforts at international reengagement."

Echoing similar sentiments, the Canadian embassy in Zimbabwe highlighted that the Constitution guarantees freedom of expression and association for its citizens.

They expressed concern that the new legislation contradicts these principles and undermines Zimbabwe's efforts to forge a new chapter in its engagement with international partners.

"Zimbabwe's Constitution guarantees freedom of expression and association for its citizens. The new legislation goes against these principles and undermines Zimbabwe's efforts to forge a new chapter in its engagement with international partners."

The Crisis in Zimbabwe Coalition released a statement expressing deep concern about the passing of the Criminal Law (Codification and Reform) Amendment

Bill, referred to as the 'Patriotic Act.'

The coalition emphasized their worries about the potential impact on civic space and the rights of individuals to freely express themselves and associate with others.

"Crisis in Zimbabwe Coalition Statement on the passing of the 'Patriotic Act 14 July 2023 @crisiscoalition is deeply concerned about the passing of the Criminal Law (Codification and Reform) Amendment Bill, popularly known as the 'Patriotic Act,' by the Government of Zimbabwe."

Amnesty International Zimbabwe described the signing of the 'Patriotic Bill' by the president as a brutal assault on civic space.

They criticized the legislation for failing to meet the requirements of legality, proportionality, and necessity, raising serious doubts about its implication for human rights in Zimbabwe.

"Zimbabwe: President's signing of 'Patriotic Bill' a brutal assault on civic space "The Act fails to meet the requirements of legality, proportionality, and necessity."

As local and international organizations join forces to condemn the passing of the 'Patriotic Bill' in Zimbabwe, concerns about the erosion of freedoms of expression and association continue to mount.

Four Student Activists Granted Bail By Harare High Court In Graffiti Protest Case

Harare High Court Judge Lucy Mungwari has granted bail to four student activists who were arrested two months ago for their alleged involvement in painting graffiti on prominent city buildings.

The graffiti was a form of protest against the continued detention of Citizens Coalition for Change (CCC) lawmaker, Job Sikhala.

The four activists, namely Emmanuel Sitima (24), Comfort Mpofu (22), Tawanda Watadza (24), and Lionel Wadamombe, are all students at the University of Zimbabwe and members of the Zimbabwe National Students Union (ZINASU).

Each of them has been required to submit ZW$500,000 as bail. The students had appealed to the higher court after Harare magistrate Learnmore Mapiye had denied them bail, arguing that a strong case had been established against them.

Mapiye had stated that denying them bail would send a message to potential offenders that tampering with state institutions would not be tolerated.

The charges against the students include seven counts of malicious damage to property, with alternative charges of criminal nuisance.

It is alleged that on May 14, 2023, along with others, the activists defaced government buildings located in the Harare Central Business District (CBD).

The graffiti contained prominent messages calling for the release of Job Sikhala, including the phrases "Free Wiwa" and "Free Job Sikhala."

Among the buildings where graffiti was allegedly found are the High Court of Zimbabwe, Parliament building, Methodist Trinity Church building, and Constitutional Court building. Similar defacements were allegedly made at the Harare Civil Court, Runhare House building, and Karigamombe Centre.

The granting of bail by Judge Mungwari provides a glimmer of hope for the student activists who have endured two months of detention.

As the case progresses, the spotlight remains on the charges leveled against them and the larger issue of freedom of expression and dissent in Zimbabwe.

The outcome of this case will undoubtedly be watched closely by both local and international observers. - With ZimLive

The Zimbabwe Assemblies of God Africa Forward in Faith Ministries (ZAOGA FIF) has announced the official dates for the grand Homegoing Celebrations of their late founder, Archbishop Profes-sor Guti.

The announcement of the official dates for the grand occasion has brought a sense of reverence and unity to the ZAOGA FIF and the wider community.

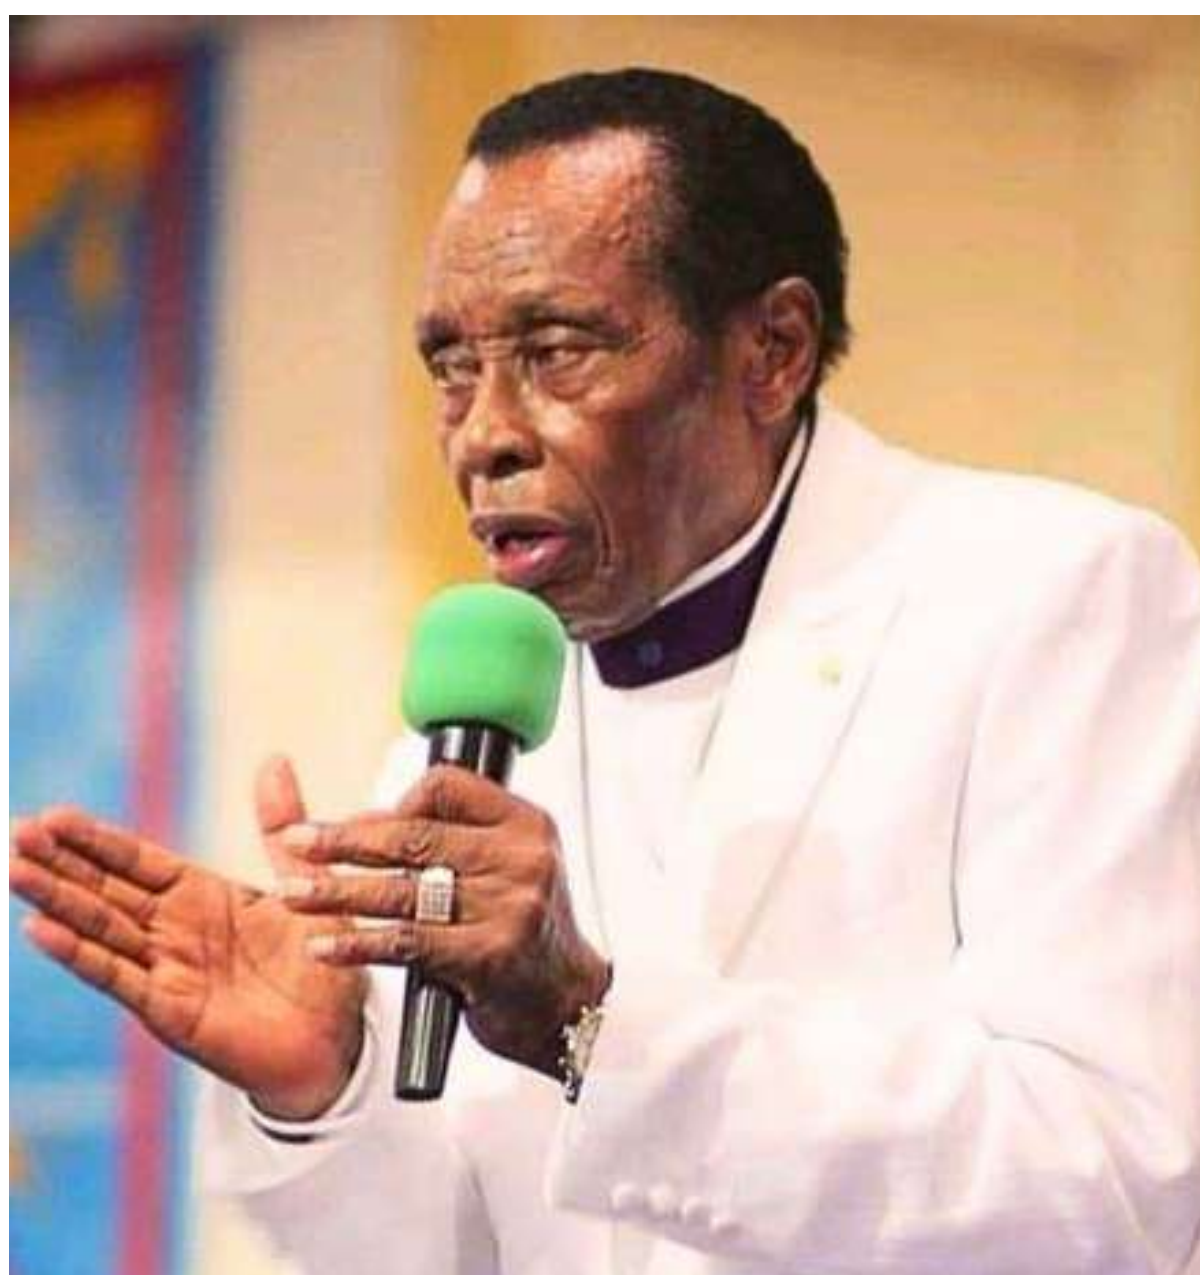

The momentous event is set to take place between Thurs-day, August 3rd to Sunday, August 6th, 2023.

The announcement, made in a letter seen by this reporter addressed to the leaders and saints of ZAOGA FIF Minis-tries International, has ignited a sense of anticipation and reverence within the church and beyond.

The forthcoming celebrations will be held in Harare, the capital city of Zimbabwe, but the specific venues have yet to be disclosed.

"Greetings in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, Amen.

"We write to inform you of the proposed dates for the up-coming grand Home Going Celebrations of our Father the Archbishop Professor Ezekiel Handinawangu Guti, which will be held in Harare, Zim-babwe.

"Proposed Dates: Thurs 3 to Sun 6 August 2023 Venues: TBA," reads part of the letter written by the church's Secretary General, Apostle Mishael Nyambo.

The news follows ZAOGA FIF's declaration of a 30-day mourning period that com-menced on July 6th, 2023, and will last until August 5th, 2023.

During this time, all con-ferences, council meetings, seminars, and tournaments within the church have been suspended, creating an at-mosphere of solemnity and unity within the ZAOGA community, fostering prayer and support during this diffi-cult time.

This collective mourning allows the members of church and the wider community to reflect on the profound impact that Archbishop Guti has had on their lives and the spiritual landscape of Zimba-bwe.

Archbishop Guti, a revered spiritual leader, founded ZAOGA FIF in 1960.

His visionary leadership and unwavering commitment to the teachings of the Gospel have transformed the lives of countless individuals, both within Zimbabwe and across the globe.

With his passing, the nation mourns the loss of a true luminary, but they also cele-brate the enduring legacy that he leaves behind.

As the Homegoing Celebra-tions draw near, the nation stands united in their admira-tion for Archbishop Guti.

Church members, fellow clergy, government officials, political leaders and dignitar-ies from various nations are expected to attend, joining together to honor the life and unwavering faith of this beloved figure.

The grandeur and signifi-cance of the event reflect the indelible mark that Archbish-op Guti has left on both the spiritual fabric of Zimbabwe and the hearts of its people.

In the midst of mourning, Zimbabwe prepares to cele-brate the extraordinary life and teachings of Archbishop Professor Ezekiel Handiwan-gu Guti.

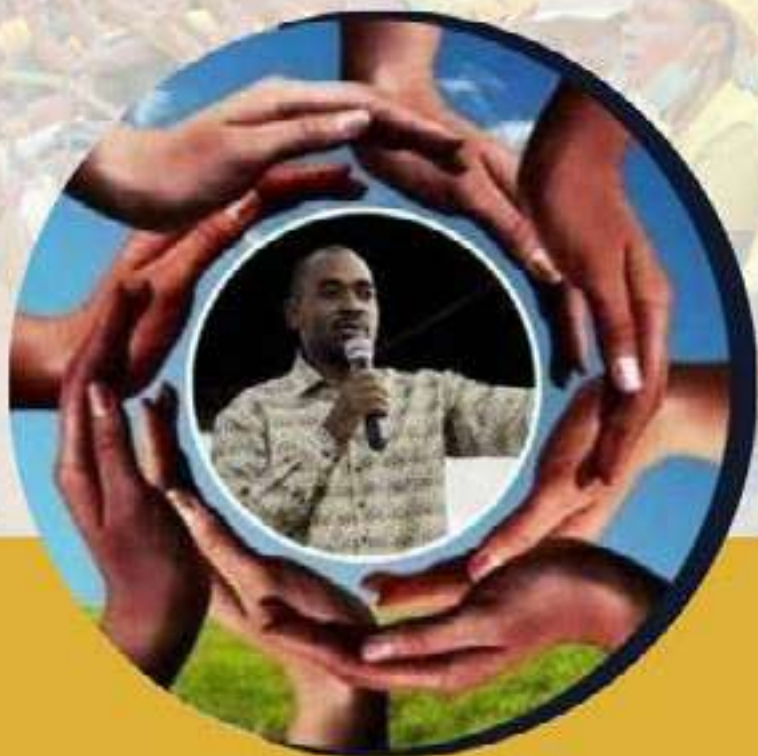

The Homegoing Celebrations will not only serve as a pro-found farewell but also as a reminder of the indomitable human spirit and the endur-ing power of faith.

As the nation comes togeth-er to commemorate this spiritual giant, his influence will continue to reverberate through the hearts and minds of Zimbabweans for genera-tions to come.

Citizens' Action For Change Bull Challenge: All The Details

By Citizens' Daily Bulletin Correspondent

Citizens Action For Change (CAC), a group of citizens both locally and abroad mobilizing funds to support Advocate Nelson Chamisa's candidature, has embarked on another fundraising endeavor by auctioning a bull generously donated by a Murehwa farmer, Mr. Mushayabasa. The donation from Mr. Mushayabasa aligns with the President's call to support the deployment of polling agents in the upcoming elections.

CAC has been actively raising funds since January 2022 and has successfully accumulated a sum of $334,000.

These funds are dedicated to voter mobilization efforts and the defense of the vote. Mr. Mushayabasa's contribution arrived at a critical juncture, as CAC intensifies its fund-raising campaign by reaching out to farmers and businesspeople across Zimbabwe.

This auction is not the first of its kind for CAC. Previously, they successfully auctioned a pig donated by Hon. Tendai Biti, fetching an impressive sum of over $6,000.

Just last month, CAC organized an auction for a holiday package to Victoria Falls, raising $5,300. These auctions have proven to be highly effective in bringing communities together and simplifying the fundraising process.

The rules of the auction are as follows:

■ Participate in the auction with a $25 donation as the entry fee.

■ You can participate as an individual or as a group.

■ Make a donation on the link <https://citizensactionforchange.org/fund/chamisa-defend-the-vote-fund-using-BullChallenge> and add the team name in the comments section of the donation link.

■ Capture a screenshot of the receipt and submit the receipt to the inbox of the organization's Twitter handle, @citizensactionz.

■ The donor will keep the receipts until they are asked to hand them over to the judges.

■ This challenge is open to every citizen; you can enter the challenge as an individual or a group. At no time will groups are allowed to merge.

■ The auction commenced at 10 p.m. on June 11, 2023, and will continue until 10 p.m. on July 22, 2023.

■ On the final day of the auction, July 22, a series of activities will take place to determine the winner.

The proceedings of the final day are as follows:

■ Participate On Twitter Space event to be held on July 22, 2023. The event will run the whole day and serve as a platform for participants to follow the proceedings.

■ At 10 p.m., a 15-minute deposit window will open, during which the auction judges will conclude the bidding process.

■ Once the deposit window closes at 11:15 p.m., the auction judges will tally their figures and cross-verify them with the bidders.

■ Finally, at 11:30 p.m., the auction judges will announce the winner of this remarkable fundraising initiative.

To actively participate and stay updated with the auction progress, it is essential for participants to be present at the designated Twitter Space event on July 22, 2023.

The event will provide an opportunity to engage with other participants and witness the thrilling culmination of the auction.

The commitment and dedication of Citizens Action for Change, coupled with the generosity of donors like Mr. Mushayabasa, highlight the collective effort to support Advocate Nelson Chamisa's candidature and uphold democratic principles.

These initiatives play a crucial role in ensuring voter participation and safeguarding the integrity of the electoral process.

To stay updated on CAC's activities and contribute to their noble cause, follow their Twitter handle, @citizensactionz, and participate in their Twitter Spaces held daily.

Together, Zimbabweans can make a significant impact and pave the way for a future that champions transparency, accountability, and democratic ideals.
